

Convergence: carry is paid daily, not at the roll

Roll-down: the contract moves, the curve does not

Both panels show the same 8%-a-year carry. With spot unchanged, a futures position earns or pays it continuously as the contract ages toward expiry. Rolling into the next contract resets where on the curve you sit; it does not itself make or lose money.